ON TARGET: 100 GW N-POWER CAPACITY BY 2047

Fast Breeder Reactors may Aid Nuclear Leap

Likely to contribute 5 GW to power generation capacity

Shilpa Samant

New Delhi: India's ambitious plan to achieve 100 GW of nuclear power capacity by 2047 may include up to 5 GW of fast breeder reactors (FBRs), people close to the development said. The move signifies India's entry and expansion into the second stage of its nuclear energy programme. Currently, only Russia has commercially operating FBRs.

The contours of 100 GW of nuclear power target by 2047 are in final stages of deliberation, one of the persons said. The country's first 500 MW prototype fast breeder reactor (PFBR) is being developed by state-owned Bharatiya Nabhikiya Vidyut Nigam Ltd (BHAVINI). Core loading or loading nuclear fuel assemblies into the reactor core at the indigenous PFBR at Kalpakam in Tamil Nadu was initiated last year in March. The unit is expected to be commissioned in the ongoing financial year.

PFBR is the forerunner of future fast breeder reactors. Once fully commissioned, India will only be the second country after Russia to have a commercial operating FBR.

Thereafter, BHAVINI could drive capacity additions of FBRs in 'fleet mode' - build multiple reactors of a similar design and configuration at the same time, or in a series, the person quoted above said.

What are Fast Breeder Reactors?

They are N-power reactors designed to generate more fuel than consumed. How do they work? They usually use mixed oxide fuel, which combines plutonium & uranium.

Why are they important for India? India has limited uranium reserves but abundant thorium. FBRs are a critical bridge to the third stage of nuclear energy where thorium is converted to Uranium-233.

INDIA'S NUCLEAR PROGRAMME
Stage 1: PHWRs using natural Uranium fuel
Stage 2: FBRs using plutonium as fuel
Stage 3: Advanced reactors using U-233 in Thorium-Uranium cycle

BHAVINI did not respond to an e-mailed request for comment till the time of filing this report. "The deliberations on the roadmap are on with the various possible nuclear power technologies," another person said. The framework for 100 GW, being prepared by an inter-ministerial committee comprising officials from the Department of Atomic Energy and Ministry of Power, is likely to have a comprehensive plan to outline technology pathways, investment needs, manpower requirements, and supply chain logistics, according to the person.

So far, India has developed and operated indigenous Pressurised Heavy Water Reactors (PHWRs) through Nuclear Power Corporation of India. Some units of Light Water Reactors have also been added, mainly through foreign collaborations. India currently has 8 GW of nuclear energy capacity, which constitutes around 1.5% of the total installed power generation capacity. The government had approved in 2008 the creation of BHAVINI to construct and operate FBRs. The FBR is a crucial step towards entering the third stage of India's nuclear programme. The PFBR will use thorium as fuel and generate power by recycling plutonium and depleted uranium extracted from the spent and of Pressurised Heavy Water Reactors.

Niti Paper for Defence Laws' Update to Boost 'Make in India'

Seeks to address cybersecurity challenges; moots strategic tieups

Yogita Seth

New Delhi: A Niti Aayog working paper has proposed changes to defence laws to facilitate a resilient domestic supply chain for in-house manufacturing and address challenges of cybersecurity more comprehensively.

Amidst evolving geopolitical tensions, cybersecurity threats and global supply chain disruption, the paper said this is vital for national security and operational readiness. The security and law revision of the Aayog has proposed these changes. The other suggestions include strategies to enhance economic competitiveness and growth, global partnerships and strategic influence, and legal reforms and good governance. The working paper is under review by the top officials of the Aayog, and could soon be shared with stakeholder ministries for consideration and action.

"A strong security framework is essential for long-term peace and prosperity. This involves modernising defence forces, enhancing cybersecurity infrastructure and improving border security," it said, adding it is crucial to strengthen internal security to address threats such as terrorism, cyberattacks and internal conflicts.

Clear Targets

Niti Aayog lays out a blueprint for defence sector
₹1.27 L Cr: Defence production in 2023-24
Target is to more than double it to ₹3 L Cr by 2029

Key Suggestions

- Modernisation of defence forces
- Enhance cybersecurity infrastructure
- Incentives for domestic mfg of defence equipment
- Enhance strategic alliance with US, Russia, Israel

The proposed amendment to the Defence of India Act (1962) seeks to address cyber resilience, supply chain security and geopolitical risks. The paper also calls for the enhancement of the Defence Production and Export Policy (2020) to provide incentives for domestic manufacturers and simplify export regulations. It has proposed a review committee for periodic updates to defence procurement and cybersecurity laws. Revision of Defence Acquisition Procedures (2020) is suggested to simplify procurement processes and mandate domestic sourcing for critical components. "Introduce blockchain-based legal frameworks for supply chain tracking, contract integrity and compliance automation, and enforce mandatory cybersecurity audits while imposing penalties for non-compliance," it added. "Additionally, India should strengthen international defence cooperation through technology transfers, strategic alliances with countries like the US, Russia and Israel, and joint cybersecurity initiatives to counter emerging digital threats," it suggested.

India's annual defence production stood at ₹27,265 crore in 2023-24, an increase of 17% from ₹46,429 crore in 2015-16 and the target is to achieve ₹3 lakh crore of indigenous production by 2029.

Other proposals include structural reforms to simplify taxation, reduce bureaucracy and create a more investor-friendly environment.

Govt Likely to Tighten Rules for Companies with Foreign Ownership

when it comes to share transfers or restructurings. The discussions are close to being finalised, the sources, both government officials said. They declined to be identified for the report as the discussion was not public.

The Finance Ministry and the Reserve Bank of India, which issues the final rules, did not respond to requests for comment. India is reviewing its foreign investment laws to simplify them and plug any loopholes. New Delhi plans to create a new category of "foreign-owned and controlled entities" (FOCE), which will also include Indian firms with "indirect foreign investment", the first source said.
